

Facilitating Community Collaboration

One Day Workshop | City + Country July/Aug 2010

Local Government | Community Partnerships | NGOs | Government | Corporate

Community collaboration | Stakeholder Partnerships | Strategic Planning and implementation | Run effective energising meetings

Selecting & Applying Collaboration Tools

Collaboration with the community, NGOs, utilities, business, government, associations and each other, is the great challenge of the next decade.

It is no longer enough to just involve, consult and inform.

Collaboration bridges the gap, between corporate outcomes and community energy. It is the common ingredient in all current participation trends and initiatives.

What are the benefits?

Build your capacity to achieve both corporate outcomes and community aspirations.

Build community spirit by running energising community gatherings where everyone is heard and things get done.

Select the most effective tools for maximum outcomes from project and business meetings.

Save consultants fees by building internal and community facilitation capacity.

Develop a robust organisation culture via dynamic 30 minute project meetings that get more work done in less time with less effort.

LG: Select and use tools that will achieve outcomes in implementing the integrated planning and reporting framework. [Community Strategic Plan | Resourcing Strategy | Delivery Program | Operational Plans]

Who will benefit?

Project managers, partnership brokers, corporate planners, general managers, sustainability educators, community liaison officers, directors, change agents, councillors and anyone who runs meetings or works with community.
